A Gift of Time

..... By Lois Rowe

Individuals who volunteer offer us a most valuable gift—their time. They sign up, show up, roll up their sleeves and participate, all for the reward of being of use. Not-for-profit organizations depend on volunteers to enhance their operations—raise funds and provide programming. Havergal is an organization that owes a debt of gratitude to its volunteers.

Havergal is fortunate to have parents who give generously of their time to support the school and its community partners. Whether it's Celebration Saturday, used books and uniforms, the annual Father Daughter Dance, horticultural work or Grade Representatives reaching out to keep parents up-to-date and socially connected, there is so much that Havergal parent volunteers contribute to the school. The efforts of these parent volunteers are coordinated through the work of the Havergal Community Committee (HCC). In this issue of The Torch, you will see that we honour the work of the HCC leaders and the role of the volunteer. Havergal is richer for the gift of time given by the many volunteers who make up the HCC.

The Annual Report contained in this issue is a testament to another form of generosity present in our community. Financial support from Old Girls, parents, students, faculty and staff, present and past, helps to fund ongoing and innovative programming for the school as well as to fund assistance in the form of student bursaries. Our school's culture of philanthropy also brings together constituents from around the world and across generations and connects them to Havergal's vital role in preparing young women to make a difference. Thank you to all donors past and future.

The excellence of a Havergal education—that is funded in part through financial donations from the community—was recognized in the accreditation report we received from Canadian Accredited Independent Schools (CAIS) this past summer. Havergal received many commendations including one that recognized the impact of the recent Strategic Plan, A Culture of Capability: “The Visiting Committee commends Havergal’s mission to grow a ‘culture of capability,’ which encourages community engagement, appropriate risk-taking and responsible leadership, ultimately greatly contributing to a culture where girls feel secure enough to take risks in and out of the classroom. This is evident at every grade level.”

This year, the school will begin the transition from one strategic plan to another. These are important plans. They engage the school in the process of looking to the future in a proactive way. We look forward to sharing with the community a summary of the impact of the current Strategic Plan and how it will shape strategies to follow. ■

Rachelle Li

School Captain 2013–2014

By Susan Pink

A violinist since the age of four, School Captain Rachelle Li has a passion and a gift for playing classical music. Rachelle's family was drawn to Havergal because of its superior music program. They knew the school would be a great environment for their musically talented daughters as it would be somewhere that they could develop into well-rounded students while enriching their musical talents. Starting at Havergal in Grade 4, Rachelle has been involved in many aspects of school life: sports teams, community partnerships, student council, the Welcome Committee, the Celebration Saturday Committee and orchestras. This year, she takes on a leading role as our School Captain. Despite a full schedule, she is dedicated to her art and practices the violin for many hours a week.

Rachelle is an accomplished young musician who has been a member of the Toronto Symphony Youth Orchestra since 2007. In the summer of 2013, she placed first in the North York Music Festival and, as a result, was a featured soloist on the October 5, 2013 program of the Greater Toronto Philharmonic Orchestra. In 2012, Rachelle was a scholarship recipient and a member of The Phil and Eli Taylor Performance Academy for Young Artists at The Royal Conservatory of Music (RCM) and attained her Performer's ARCT (Associate of the Royal Conservatory of Toronto) from the RCM in Violin Performance with First Class Honours with Distinction, the highest level. She also received Havergal's Senior Music Award for the 2012-2013 school year.

During the past few summers, Rachelle has focused her energy on global community service adventures, led by experiential travel agencies. Her experiences have included volunteering at an elephant conservatory in Thailand, teaching English to orphans in India, building chimneys to ventilate villagers' kitchens in Peru and participating in a medical mission in El Salvador. These missions—the medical mission to El Salvador in particular—have inspired her to pursue a future career in medicine.

► Rachelle Li, School Captain 2013-2014

Rachelle is someone who recognizes that working with a team builds excitement and passion for things. She adds that playing in an orchestra teaches you about teamwork and collaboration. Her future is bright and she is leaving her options open. "I want to see where the future takes me," she explains. This is in perfect step with this year's school motto "Seize the Unseen in 13-14," which was developed by Rachelle and her fellow student leaders and encourages students to take risks in life and to seek out new opportunities.

One thing Rachelle is sure of is that wherever she lands beyond the ivy, she will continue to play the violin. "Playing in an orchestra is a magical experience," Rachelle says. "When you play together, you experience the emotion of music together. Whether it's the Toronto Symphony Youth Orchestra or the Havergal Senior Orchestra, you come together because you share a passion for music." ■

Whole Girl, Whole School

• • • By Leslie Anne Dexter & Dr. Michael Simmonds • • •

The Junior and Upper Schools at Havergal College are connected by more than a bridge that crosses a ravine. The schools are united by a common mission of preparing young women to make a difference. With this in mind, we decided to co-author a single message for this issue of The Torch because it underscores the interdependence of our respective schools to instill in every girl an empowering belief that anything is possible.

This Whole Girl, Whole School approach begins in Junior Kindergarten and continues through Grade 12. While the developmental needs of Junior School students differ from their Middle and Senior School counterparts, the Whole Girl, Whole School focus enables students at every age to engage, not only with trusted adults, but also with local and global communities. Take for example the Institute at Havergal—at its core, the Institute builds capability in students of every grade through group- and team-based problem-solving methods that promote dialogue and critical thinking. As importantly, Junior and Upper School students know where to go to discuss (and act upon) their ideas. Student-led initiatives are supported by our new guidebook, Ready, Set, Dream: Thinking Your Ideas to Action, which helps girls translate their ideas into action in the Junior School's Learning Hub or the Upper School's Forum for Change. The guidebook was co-created by Old Girl Alex Medline 2011 and the Institute team.

More evidence of our whole school collaboration can be found in the professional growth initiative that was developed by JK to Grade 12 teachers. Last year, a team of teachers from both schools worked closely with the Director of Curriculum & Faculty Development, Seonaid Davis, to establish a best-practice approach to professional growth. What emerged was a framework for professional learning that was common to teachers at every grade and sensitive to the individual needs of both new and experienced teachers. Establishing a common professional growth initiative in this way is possible only because these conversations are mission- and values-driven.

Another important way the Junior and Upper Schools support the Whole Girl can be found in the structure and composition of leadership teams. Acting Principal Lois Rowe tasked five strategic leadership teams with the challenge of translating the mission and values of Havergal into action. She began with a simple premise: “structure the responsibilities of the leadership positions in the school around the support they provide, and let the programs follow.”

Without exception, every leadership team at Havergal is comprised of Junior and Upper School representatives who focus their effort on different aspects of the school: teaching and learning; student and parent engagement; faculty growth; and overall wellness of students. This strategic direction is exciting and will continue to create an environment that allows the collective knowledge, resources and skills of each team member to flourish and foster a culture of capability for students.

At Havergal, girls know that they can ask questions, try new things, solve real problems and make a positive difference in their world. Remarkably this is as true today as it was in 1894, when the school was founded. And although First Principal Ellen Knox could not have imagined how technology would expand her local community to the now global community in which we all live, she did know what question to ask of her students 119 years ago when she said: “What are you going to do?” This is the same question we ask our students today. ■

Understanding Self-Efficacy

..... By Nicole Davies & Helen Carayannis

Guided by Havergal's Strategic Plan, A Culture of Capability, we recognize the importance of intentionally and explicitly developing self-efficacy within our students so that each girl feels empowered to believe in herself, to find her unique strengths and passions and to understand her own capacities and capabilities thus allowing her to thrive in a complex and unpredictable world.

Self-efficacy is defined as the belief in one's capabilities to achieve a goal or an outcome. Students with a strong sense of self-efficacy are more likely to challenge themselves with difficult tasks and to be intrinsically motivated. These students will put forth a higher degree of effort in order to meet their commitments and attribute failure to things that are in their control, rather than blaming external factors. Self-efficacious students recover quickly from setbacks and ultimately are likely to achieve their personal goals.

Throughout our combined 33 years as Havergal educators, we have often observed and worked with children who, although they are intellectually capable and possess good self-esteem, do not always believe in their academic capabilities. These children may become quickly frustrated, give up easily and rely on teacher and/or parent support to take simple next steps. If they believe that they cannot be successful, they are less likely to make a concerted effort and may consider challenging tasks as threats to be avoided. Students with low self-efficacy often have low aspirations that may result in academic underperformance that can develop into learned-helplessness and a self-fulfilling cycle.

As the 2012-2013 Havergal Chairs of Learning and Teaching, we applied the action research process to better understand our students and to explore strategies that can help our girls believe in their capabilities so that they learn independently and confidently, and grow and achieve their learning goals. Focusing on our Grade 4 to 6 students, we set out to answer the following questions:

- How self-efficacious are our Grade 4 to 6 students presently?
- What pedagogical steps are needed to develop self-efficacy in students in Grades 4 to 6 to strengthen their beliefs about their academic capabilities?
- How can students develop self-awareness about their academic capabilities and apply these strategies to build their own self-efficacy?
- How can parents and teachers support students as they develop self-awareness about their academic capabilities?

Over the course of the year, we conducted a thorough literature review and gathered data from Junior School students, parents and teachers through surveys, one-on-one interviews and small group discussions. Once analyzed, our research revealed some significant findings. Our students understand and can articulate well the importance of adopting a growth mindset—the belief that their abilities can be developed through dedication and hard work. However, when academically challenged, many of these same students are not able to apply growth mindset behaviours; instead, they become quickly consumed by feelings of stress, pressure and the fear of failure.

Similarly, the data suggests that, generally speaking, parent beliefs are also out of sync with their behaviours. It is clear that parents want their children to develop an intrinsic love of learning and to discover their passions, which will ultimately contribute to them leading a fulfilling and happy life. However, a significant number of parents revealed a deep concern that their children will be unprepared for future endeavours. This fear is then expressed verbally and/or non-verbally to their children, placing pressure upon them to perform at a high level in order to stay ahead, earn top marks and develop special qualities that may set them apart from others. Parental reaction may add further to students' adverse feelings regarding their academic capabilities.

Our research is helping us to better understand our student and parent thinking, which is guiding us to implement next steps to help build student self-efficacy. We feel strongly that until all adults in our community understand growth mindsets—and work towards developing and applying a growth mindset in their own lives—we cannot adequately support our students to become self-efficacious. As a starting point, we recommend reading Carol Dweck's book, Mindset, which is an inspiring and engaging read that helps individuals to better understand themselves and their potential. Copies of this book were made available to all faculty and staff members as summer reading, which has sparked much conversation around teaching and learning here at Havergal.

The journey to self-efficacy is an ongoing and complex process. We all have a responsibility to work together to support our students in this area. As Dweck suggests, if we want to give our children a gift, the best thing we can do is to teach them to love challenges, to be intrigued by mistakes, to enjoy effort and to become lifelong learners. ■

“Crucial to children’s self-esteem is the belief that they are capable individuals who can set goals for themselves and achieve them. Children can have good concepts of self and realistic self-esteem yet not be able to succeed in school or life because they lack the ability to believe that they are capable.” —A. Bandura*

Assessing Self-Efficacy

Building self-efficacy is a central goal of our Strategic Plan, A Culture of Capability. To support the plan, a framework for self-efficacy and global capability was created by Christine Shain (the school’s Vice-Principal at that time), Seonaid Davis (Director of Curriculum & Faculty Development) and Ann Peel (Director, Institute at Havergal). What was not initially developed was a measurement tool to assess the framework—the school did not know quantitatively where students sat on the framework.

Last school year, Ann Peel began working with Barbara Bodkin from the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education (OISE) to create an online self-assessment tool regarding self-efficacy. In order to collect baseline self-efficacy data, OISE’s team of researchers, in collaboration with Havergal’s team, developed a self-efficacy survey based upon 18 questions. The online survey was piloted last year with our Grade 6, 7 and 10 students and is currently being used with all Grade 10 students and participants in the Global Experience Program (excursion and exchange). Students from the Ghana excursion in July 2013 were the first group to take the online survey, both before leaving and upon their return.

“We will collect and analyze data from the cohort of Grade 10 students at large and those going through the Global Experience Program to get a better sense of what self-efficacy means and what feeling capable looks like for students,” Ann says. “We hope we can isolate the variables—find out who each student is, what she’s encountered and whether what she encounters makes her feel more or less capable.”

The survey asks students to choose which kind of girl they are most like right now and then to decide whether the statement they choose is “sort of true” or “really true” for them. For example, the first question is: “Which statement is more true for you?” The choices are: “Some girls find it hard to ask for help” and “Some girls find it easy to ask for help.” If the student selects “Some girls find it hard to ask for help” then a follow-up question requires the student to select the verity of the statement—is it “Really true for me” or “Sort of true for me.”

* Bandura, A. (1997). Self-efficacy: the exercise of control. New York: W.H. Freeman.

As this is a multi-year project, the school and OISE researchers will review survey results and make any required adjustments at the end of each year. “It’s a dynamic concept. If we find patterns—such as grade- or experienced-based patterns—we may be able to determine the impact of our programs and where interventions would be beneficial to help students. For example, do students who go on an excursion or exchange feel more or less capable than other students,” says Ann, noting that self-efficacy is not only impacted by the school, but also impacted by other factors such as family, social relationships and one’s age and stage of life.

The results of this survey will add to the school’s growing knowledge of self-efficacy findings, including a research project with Women’s College Hospital with our Grade 7 to 12 students. Led by Old Girl Dr. Gillian Hawker 1978, this study set out to measure the validity of the standardized measures of self-efficacy (normally applied to at-risk groups) through an online survey, as well as qualitative one-on-one interviews to better understand students’ understanding of self-efficacy and its determinants.

Investing in Education

Professional development is the R&D (research and development) of education. It provides teachers with the opportunity to gain new knowledge, to explore innovative concepts, to share learning with colleagues and to advance the practice of teaching.

Each year, a member of Havergal’s faculty gains the opportunity to take on a leadership role in enriching the life of the school as the Havergal Chair of Learning and Teaching, an opportunity made possible by an investment from Michael and Heather Gardiner who established the Havergal Chair of Learning and Teaching endowment at the school in 1998. Since then, the recipients of this position have focused their research on a diverse range of topics (for more information, visit www.havergal.on.ca/chair).

English and Social Sciences teacher Jennifer Goldberg holds the position this year. Jennifer is investigating what kinds of assessment feedback yield the greatest results, promoting self-efficacy in students, and in turn, teachers.

Feedback that Works

By Jennifer Goldberg

Havergal Chair of Learning and Teaching 2013-2014

Students invest so much time producing work for teachers. Teachers invest so much time assessing students’ work. Yet, students often feel teachers haven’t understood their work, and teachers commonly feel that students haven’t understood their feedback. Why do we—students and teachers—invest so much time and energy in a cycle that so often produces feelings of failure on both sides? This question is the one driving my research this year as the Havergal Chair of Learning and Teaching. I am investigating what kinds of assessment and feedback produce the best results by exploring what approaches:

- actually improve student work;
- encourage a growth mindset in students;
- promote the highest sense of self-efficacy in students and teachers;
- allow teachers to most effectively monitor their impact;
- facilitate dialogue between students, teachers and parents that speaks to the whole girl; and
- are consistent with ministry policy, build on assessment using levels and achievement chart categories and balance assessment for, as and of learning.

We know that feedback speaks to the essence of education, and yet so much it—at least the formal part—is students’ and teachers’ least favourite aspect of schooling. My hope is to work with colleagues and students to develop ways to make feedback a more meaningful opportunity for teaching and learning at Havergal.

Students

From Ideas to Action

What? Students Act Now enables each student to apply her learning to develop her view of the world, and to experience her impact in shaping her environment.

Why? We shape innovative minds to enable Havergal students to be effective problem solvers anywhere, anytime with anyone.

How? When students enter the Forum for Change in the Upper School, or the Learning Hub in the Junior School on Thursdays at lunch, they share their ideas.

We work with them using Ready, Set, Dream: Thinking Your Ideas to Action to get at the heart of their ideas, to understand their strengths and their values and to help them build a team to take their ideas and put them in to action. As students travel their journeys with us, their ideas evolve and become more complex. Students can track the evolution of their journeys by setting up eportfolios on www.mindmeister.com.

Evolving Ideas

Girls Helping Girls

Last year's recipient of the Student Innovation Award, Susanna Manziaris, has teamed up with her sister Linda's jewelry-making business, Body Bijou (www.bodybijou.com), to help raise more support for girls' scholarships in Kenya, Jamaica and South Africa. This is social entrepreneurship at its best—focusing on the power of young women to bring change to the world. Visit www.girlshelpinggirls.ca for more information.

Syrian Child Refugees

Children are suffering in refugee camps in Jordan and Turkey. This situation disturbed Grade 4 students Jennipher, Elayna and Abby. In conversations with the Institute, the students turned their worries into a compelling story to which their schoolmates could relate. They shared their story in Junior School Prayers and persuaded fellow students to dedicate the proceeds of a pizza lunch to UNICEF's work to build a school in the Zataari camp in Jordan.

Dance for Life

When Alessandra (Ali) Scaini could not dance due to injury, she decided to take her love of dance into the community. After spending last spring exploring many possibilities and limitations, she decided to start an after-school dance club at our partner school, Grenoble Public School. Starting this fall, Ali and a group of students will teach dance while other Havergal students participate in the long-standing homework club. Ali transformed her love of dance—and her belief in its power—from a personal loss to a collective gain.

TEDxHavergalCollege

A student group organized this event, Life as Don't Know It—featuring unique individuals with inspiring ideas to change the world—which was held in the Legacy Theatre on November 16.

Want to follow these ideas as they evolve? We will be following up with these students in an upcoming issue of The Torch to share the evolution and progress of their stories and ideas.

Havergal
Parents
Making a Difference

By Young Um

For these Havergal mothers—Joanne Gooding 1982, Elizabeth Seger and Mary Whitelaw—leaving the workforce was a decision that was right for their families.

Today, as moms of teenagers, their lives are sometimes hectic and often full of surprises as they manage their households and volunteer their time and expertise at Havergal and at other local organizations that are close to their hearts.

You can tell that Joanne, Elizabeth and Mary absolutely love Havergal, and over the years, their commitment to the school has continued to deepen. Volunteering seems second nature to these women, who have each assumed various leadership roles at Havergal, culminating in holding the position of Chair of the school's parent association, the Havergal Community Committee (HCC): Joanne (2012–13), Elizabeth (2013–14) and Mary (2014–15).

“Volunteers are an important part of the community. Parents bring different perspectives that enrich the overall school experience,” says Louise Yearwood, Executive Director of Advancement & Community Relations, who oversees the HCC. “Collectively and individually, they [Joanne, Elizabeth and Mary] are tremendously strong leaders for the HCC.”

The HCC is a committee of 30 parent volunteers who act as liaisons between the parent body and the faculty, staff and students at Havergal. The HCC keeps the school's ties strong throughout the year by organizing community-building events including the Father Daughter Dance, Parent Luncheon, Staff Appreciation Lunch, Used Uniform and Textbook Collection and Celebration Saturday, along with ongoing support of horticulture and the Green & Gold Shop. The HCC's Grade Rep Convenors manage the large network of more than 50 Grade Reps from JK to Grade 12 who provide communications support between parents and their respective grades.

“The HCC brings together parents who want to make a difference,” says current HCC Chair Elizabeth, who will be passing the torch to Mary, the current Vice-Chair, next school year. As Chair, Elizabeth runs monthly HCC meetings, participates as an ex-officio member of the Board of Governors and, along with Mary, represents the HCC at many school functions.

Elizabeth adds that more than 250 parents volunteer with the HCC each year to support the school and their daughters. For parents who are new to the community, she encourages attendance at parent socials and coffee mornings to learn what's happening at Havergal, and suggests that being a Grade Rep is also a great way to get to know other parents. And just as parents want their daughters to get everything out of the Havergal experience, the HCC encourages parents to do the same. “Determine how you want to participate in the school—whether it's helping out at a single event, signing up for a weekly shift at the Green & Gold Shop, volunteering a few hours at the annual Celebration Saturday event or serving on the HCC. Just get involved,” adds Elizabeth, noting that all parents are invited to attend HCC meetings.

In their leadership roles, these ladies are role models for their daughters. “I hope that at whatever stage of life, my children feel compelled to give back to their community,” Joanne says. “Children learn by example. What you teach your kids at home is how they balance things in life and how they become good citizens.”

Parents' Journey

In their early days as Havergal parents, Joanne, Elizabeth and Mary got involved with the school in order to meet other parents and to get to know the school, faculty and staff better. Since then, their involvement with Havergal has grown and evolved.

Although their future plans are still in development—after their children graduate from high school—they will keep active in their community and continue to investigate new opportunities to learn and grow. Mary adds: “If you don’t get involved and give back, you’ve missed out on the greatest gift life has to offer.”

Joanne Gooding: With the instability in Toronto public schools in the 70s, Joanne’s mother (who attended a girls’ school in Winnipeg) wanted her to attend an independent school. With a chuckle, Joanne recalls that she “did not want to go to private school.” Starting at Havergal in Grade 8, she grew to love it. Joanne’s family legacy continues, as her daughter Jillian started at Havergal in Grade 1 (she’s now in Grade 12). However, it wasn’t until Jillian was nine years old and her son, Charlie, was five years old (now at Sterling Hall in Grade 8) that Joanne decided to leave the workforce after working for 18 years in market research with the CBC (both she and her husband, Brian, travelled a lot for work back then).

“The school is always welcoming, and that makes parents feel connected and part of the community.”

—Joanne Gooding

Joanne being at home gives the Gooding household the flexibility they need. Volunteering allows Joanne to give back to the school that afforded her a great education. Her volunteer path started with her being a Grade Rep for several years, taking on one of the Grade Rep Convenor positions in 2011–12. She also ran the Havergal Golf Tournament in 2011 (proceeds were endowed in May 2011 to establish the HCC Bursary Fund) and assumed the Chair of the HCC last year.

“It’s been so interesting, exciting and fulfilling to be involved with the school over the years,” Joanne says. “The school is always welcoming, and that makes parents feel connected and part of the community. If you get involved with the school, you’ll have a better understanding of the education process, how an institution is run and what your daughter is experiencing. You’ll get to meet great people, some of whom you may not have normally encountered as they are outside your daughter’s circle.”

Elizabeth Seger: When the Seger-Rhamey family grew to four children under the age of six, Elizabeth and her husband, Peter Rhamey, made the decision for her to designate more time at home, leaving her 15-year career in the finance and venture capital sector.

A graduate of Toronto French School (TFS), her four children attended her alma mater. Her oldest daughter Anna is now in her second year at university. Elizabeth’s middle daughter Karen took it upon herself to apply to Havergal and was admitted for Grade 7 (she’s now in Grade 12); her youngest, Claire, started at Havergal two years ago (she’s now in Grade 9) and her twin brother Michael attends TFS.

Over the years, Elizabeth has come to appreciate what makes Havergal so special for her family. “Havergal is a place of traditions and academic excellence. The facilities here are unbelievable and the teaching support has been great. I enjoy being a part of the community. Volunteering allows me to put my mind and skills to work. It’s rewarding in a different kind of way,” says Elizabeth, who was a Grade Rep for several years before taking on the HCC Vice Chair position in 2012–13. For the last three years, Elizabeth has also been a presenter for Scientists in School, which merges her passion for science and enjoyment of teaching.

Mary Whitelaw: It was a big decision for Mary to stay at home to start a family and leave her position at IBM. And when it came to decisions about schooling—having attended a private school herself—Mary wanted her three children to have a similar experience.

Mary and her husband Brian’s appreciation for higher education at Havergal began when Daniella entered Grade 7 (she’s now in Grade 11). “It was time for Daniella to begin her journey at Havergal. The school is such an amazing and fabulous place for young women,” says Mary, noting that she also volunteered at her sons’ (Matthew and Nicholas) school, St. Andrew’s College, on the Parents Guild. Her sons are currently second- and first-year university students. “Having the time and ability to give back is very important to our family.”

Mary has chaired the Father Daughter Committee and volunteered at Celebration Saturday. As well, she continues to be a Grade Rep and a member of the Rowing Committee. This year, she’s volunteering at the Green & Gold Shop and as the HCC Vice Chair.

“It’s the possibilities that draw me to be involved with the school. Through volunteering, you are able to meet wonderful parents and faculty who have the same drive and dedication to Havergal,” Mary says. “It’s the joy of the end result. When students give you a hug and say thank you—it’s the greatest gratification you can receive.”

Their Philanthropy

For Elizabeth, philanthropy has a broad definition, combining the giving of time and money to make a difference. A few years ago, Elizabeth and her husband travelled to Nicaragua with Bridges to Community, an organization in which her brother is involved, on a “shared work” development project with a local community; the experience changed her perspective. “I came home a changed person,” she says. “Volunteering is a way to engage fully in any community.”

According to Mary, time is treasure. “You give back not because you have to, but because you want to,” she says. Mary and her family are involved with their church community initiatives and, for several years, have volunteered as Celebrity Clowns for the Santa Claus Parade.

“Everyone contributes at different levels. You have to define philanthropy for yourself and your household,” says Joanne, who also sits on the Board of Rosedale United Church and the Donaldda Club. And since the early 1990s, Joanne and her classmate Diane King have been Class Reps, keeping nearly 30 Old Girls from the Class of 1982 connected to each other.

By definition, philanthropy is the love of humanity. “Philanthropy is about thinking beyond yourself to improve our world. It’s about appreciating and engaging with the community that you’re a part of,” Louise says. “Philanthropy is about creating positive changes in the world, fostering relationships that share a common understanding and appreciation, and making a difference—principles that are deeply-rooted values in Havergal’s history.”

For nearly 120 years, generations of Havergalians—parents, Old Girls, students, faculty and staff—have given back to the school. To ensure this tradition continues, the school’s culture of philanthropy must continue to grow.

“On behalf of the school, I would like to express our deepest gratitude to the HCC and all our volunteers—parents, students, Old Girls, faculty and staff—for the incredible work they do for Havergal and making the school one of their families’ charitable priorities,” Louise adds. “You enrich our community and uphold the school’s values and traditions. You make Havergal what it is—a school that is able to offer young women from around the world a truly exceptional education.” ■

“Through volunteering, you are able to meet wonderful parents and faculty who have the same drive and dedication to Havergal.”

An International Experience

At Havergal, our Boarding School includes 51 students in Grades 9 through 12 who represent 16 different countries. Boarders share many qualities in common, among them a genuine enthusiasm for acquiring an excellent education and an openness to experience new situations and adventures.

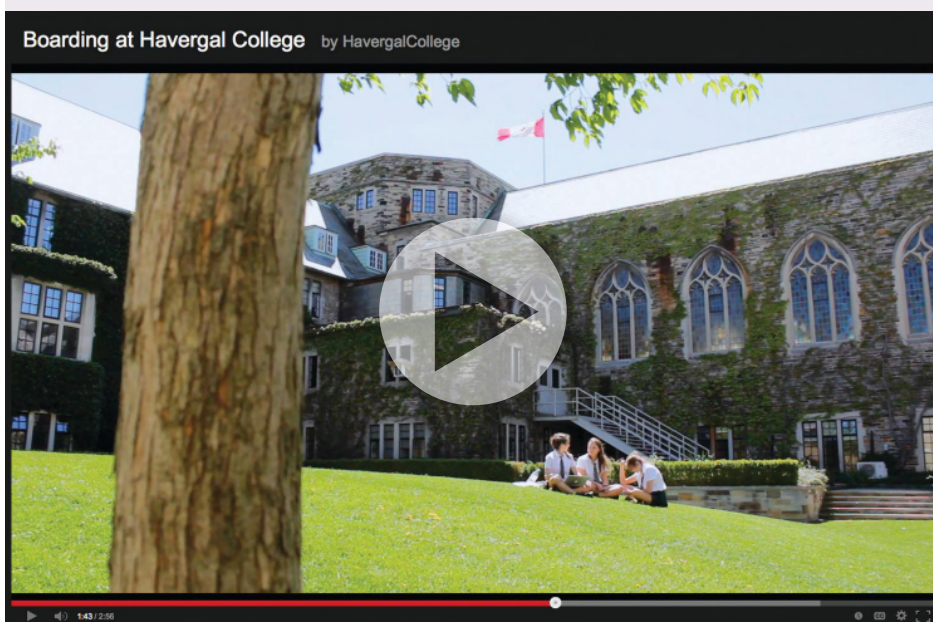

“All of these young women are remarkable, and our Boarding Team has enjoyed getting to know each of them,” says Natalia Stewart, Assistant Head – Boarding School, who started at Havergal in September 2013 along with new Dons Erin Cochrane, Annie Maki and Farisa Mohammed. The new group joins Boarding Team members Claire Davis and Katherine Joyce.

Each member of the Boarding Team brings a wealth of knowledge, experience and skills to her role. And throughout the year, many students will get to know them as they substitute teach in the Junior and Upper Schools, assist with excursions and participate in various co- and extra-curricular activities. The Boarding Team, along with Wellness staff, are dedicated to providing a warm, nurturing and supportive home-away-from-home.

“Our goal is to have a larger connection between Day and Boarding students as well as instilling in their minds the famous question posed by Havergal’s First Principal Ellen Knox: what are you going to do?” Natalia adds. “We will also encourage the Whole Girl spirit by providing experiences that enrich our Boarders’ lives. I know the Boarders will fill our community with laughter and endless stories. To date, our team has already learned so much from our students and witnessed compassion, resilience, perseverance and humility. We look forward to a terrific year!”

Boarding is truly an international experience. In a new video series, Boarding students share what life is like as they take you on a tour of the school: www.havergal.on.ca/boardingschool. The videos are available in English, Spanish, Mandarin, Cantonese, Russian, Vietnamese, Japanese and Korean—please share the link with family and friends who may be considering Boarding School at Havergal for their daughters. ■

Traditions:

Linking Our Past With Our Future

By Susan Pink

Traditions play an important role in the development of any organization, and for Havergal they continue to shape the school. “Traditions help to maintain the identity of the school and to provide a link between all those who have been here. They bond us through shared experience,” says Brenda Robson, who has played an integral role in supporting many of Havergal’s traditions. The former Dean of Students, Brenda worked with students for 42 years before retiring from teaching in 2005; she currently works as a Development Associate with the school’s department of Advancement & Community Relations.

Havergal’s traditions help to build community and keep the school’s mission and values at its core. The school has many traditions that have withstood the test of time including: Carol Service, House Shout, Founders’ Day, Candlelight, Graduation, Grandchildren’s Party, Celebration Saturday, Prayers and Houses.

“Although we have had some traditions from the school’s inception, we are also constantly updating and adding new traditions to school life,” says Brenda. “It’s an ongoing process; however, it’s not just about the little changes. It’s about preserving the essence of who we are as a school by ensuring that our mission lives on in everything that we do. Through tradition, we can keep the essence of the school running through its veins.”

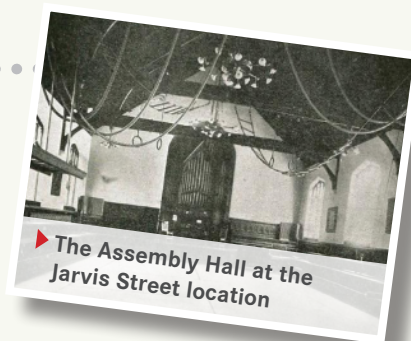

Prayers

As Havergal’s oldest tradition, Prayers continues to be an important part of the lives of the Upper and Junior Schools. The tradition of Prayers began when the school first opened in 1894—it was a daily meeting of the whole school community in the Assembly Hall. Back then, First Principal Ellen Knox led Prayers by offering an opening prayer and reciting a Bible verse that the entire school memorized in five minutes and repeated in unison twice. Miss Knox then played a hymn on the organ and a guest speaker—often a missionary—spoke to the students. Everyone would exit from the hall as Miss Knox played a march or an opera selection on the organ.

Today, Prayers continues to be a thoughtful, reflective time, which is an important part of our students’ educational experiences as it supports and builds both an individual and collective sense of spirituality. Prayers celebrates the seasons of the Anglican Church as well as numerous faith traditions that represent the diversity of the school’s community. At Prayers, students, faculty and staff are prompted to reflect on questions and to come to their own conclusions. Sometimes guest speakers are invited to explore important life questions; at other times, the questions come from the school’s interesting and engaged community of students, staff and faculty, who share their own experiences with the school on various topics. Most often, Upper School students begin and end Prayers with wonderful musical performances. The Junior and Upper Schools host Prayers three mornings a week, under the direction of The Reverend Susan Bell in the Upper School, and Andrew MacDonald, the Lay Pastoral Associate, in the Junior School.

“Prayers is the common experience of every Havergalian and is always a part of reunion weekends,” Brenda says. “Although some students may not appreciate traditions such as Prayers at the time, in retrospect as Old Girls they grow to value them.”

The House System

Another tradition that continues to strengthen the school's community ties is the House system. It was first established in 1929 by Second Principal Marian Wood as the basis for the organization of the Boarding School. In 1931, by popular demand, day school students adopted the House System too, as it encouraged cooperation and school spirit. Today, every student, Old Girl, administrator, faculty and staff member is connected to one of the 10 Houses, which have been named after women who have made outstanding contributions to the life of the school.

Havergal Houses

- Frances Ridley (Havergal)—founded in 1929: this outstanding early Victorian era woman was a positive female role model, composer, poet, author and humanitarian. Havergal College is named after her.
- Ellen Knox—founded in 1929: Havergal's First Principal for the first 30 years (1894 to 1924); Miss Knox laid the foundation for the school's traditions and character.
- Marian Wood—founded in 1929: a member of the Havergal faculty for 39 years; Havergal's Second Principal (1924 to 1937).
- Kate Leonard—founded in 1936: a donor. The Leonard Foundation bequeathed a significant gift of $40,000 and mining stocks worth more than $100,000 to the school. This gift allowed the school to remain viable even at the end of the Great Depression.

- Mary Dennys—founded in 1996: an Old Girl (Class of 1940), teacher and Havergal's Sixth Principal (1975 to 1985).
- Marcelle De Freitas—founded in 1996: a beloved teacher for 40 years (1944 to 1984).

Until 1954, the Junior School was organized under a different House System, using names of Native tribes. Today, all students are in the same House system. Grade 6 students lead the Houses in the Junior School and elected Grade 12 House Captains lead the Houses in the Upper School. Students earn points for their Houses by showing improvement, demonstrating House spirit, performing special services or taking on additional responsibilities during their life at school. The House with the greatest number of points at the end of the academic year wins the House Banner, which was first awarded in 1943 to Margaret Taylor House. The House Banner is the most coveted group award of the school year and the banners are on display in the Brenda Robson Hall.

Thank you to Brenda Robson, Debra Latcham (Archival Technician) and The Reverend Susan Bell for their contributions to this article.

Reunion Weekend 2013

Graduating classes ending with '3 and '8 returned to Havergal on Saturday, September 28, and Sunday, September 29, to reconnect with former classmates and with the Havergal community.

On Saturday, Old Girls checked in at the Old Girls Welcome Desk in the Rotunda, grabbed a delicious cup of coffee in the Hava Java Coffee House and attended a special tree-planting celebration commemorating the life of Lisa Hardie 1993. Then they were off to take in all of the sights and sounds of Celebration Saturday, including the Old Girls against current students' field hockey game on the Ratcliffe Field. It was another close match ending in a tie! Thank you to Judy Ratcliffe 1952, our coach extraordinaire. Thank you also to Anna Coatsworth 2001 for being the field hockey coordinator of the Old Girls team.

On Saturday night, the Reunion Years Cocktail Party brought together a record number of more than 350 Old Girls to mix and mingle with friends, classmates, staff and former staff in the Brenda Robson Hall. A number of Old Girls even donned their tunics for the occasion! Lots of laughter could be heard as they reminisced and looked at old pictures of their time at Havergal in an archives display as well as a digital photo display, prepared by the school's Archival Technician, Debra Latcham. A special thank you to Sarah Siu 2008, who led everyone in the singing of the school song by taking on the piano accompaniment—including all nine key changes! Old Girls then moved on to their special class celebrations for the remainder of the evening. Old Girls were back at the school on Sunday morning to attend the Old Girls Chapel Service led by the School Chaplain, The Reverend Susan Bell, and to do a bit of shopping in the Green & Gold Shop. Finally, the Class of 1963 attended a special luncheon honouring their 50th Reunion. Thank you to everyone who helped make Reunion Weekend so special!

Classes ending with '4 and '9 will celebrate reunions next year. Mark your calendars now for 2014!

Havergal's Culture of Philanthropy

In this Fall 2013 issue of The Torch/Annual Report, we are reminded of the importance of supporting our communities by giving our time and resources as well as engaging in creative partnerships to enhance the world around us.

It has been our pleasure and privilege to engage in the Havergal community as Chair of the Havergal College Board of Governors and Chair of The Havergal College Foundation for 2012-2013. These volunteer roles are important ways for us to assist the school in its goal of achieving excellence in education.

Giving is a cornerstone of the school's culture of philanthropy and the "joy of giving"—so reflected in the current year's Annual Giving Program materials—is at the heart of this great school. We all rest on the shoulders of those who came before and we have the opportunity to ensure a bright future for Havergal College, its students and its alumnae by continuing to make Havergal a charitable priority for our respective families.

On behalf of the school, we would like to offer our sincere gratitude to the many generous donors who included Havergal College in their philanthropy this past school year. Several of you even chose to commit to a major gift ($25,000+) and, for this act of generosity, we are especially grateful. Giving and participating in the school's Annual Giving Program is critical to the execution of our mission, "to prepare young women to make a difference," and all that this means from both a curricular and co-curricular point of view.

We hope that you will continue to give to Havergal. With your philanthropic support the school will flourish and grow into the future.

Urban Elegance

Havergal hosted a major gala fundraising event in Toronto at the historic Carlu on Saturday, May 4, 2013. The event was held to honour the contributions of Havergal's 10th Principal, Dr. Susan R. Groesbeck. The evening provided an opportunity for the school's stakeholders to come together in friendship and celebration and to raise funds for four key school initiatives. The net proceeds ($273,485) from the event assisted in funding the Junior School Outdoor Learning PlaySpace, a state-of-the-art pool timing system for Havergal's 25-metre swimming pool and renovations to the Learning Support Specialist office and Science classroom in the Upper School.

Annual Giving: Class of 2013 Bursary

Every year, graduating class families are asked to contribute a special gift to the school in honour of their daughters' graduation. Families of the 2013 graduating class established an endowed fund to support a bursary for one or more Havergal College students who demonstrate financial need. A committee of parent volunteers and student representatives worked throughout the year to encourage support for the gift, with over $152,000 raised to establish the fund. Thank you to all of the students and families who so generously supported the Class of 2013 Bursary.

Giving Back to HC

Elizabeth Carr 1995, Ivy Society donor and Havergal Circle donor, shares these sentiments about her time at Havergal.

“Attending Havergal was a turning point in my life. I donate to the school in gratitude for the opportunities it gave me and to provide other young women with similar opportunities for growth.

Havergal gave me an excellent academic foundation. The demanding course load consistently pushed me to meet challenging goals. In addition to learning science, history, languages and mathematics, Havergal taught me how to learn. The skills I developed at Havergal have served me exceedingly well in my subsequent academic and professional pursuits.

Equally importantly, Havergal gave me a community that helped to mould my values. The school emphasized the importance of integrity, fair play and teamwork. I continue to be inspired by the challenge to make a difference for good in the world.

I want every young woman to have the opportunity to enjoy the education I experienced. This is why I give to Havergal.”

The HCC Bursary

The Havergal Community Committee (HCC) creates an important liaison between the parent body and the school. Its dedicated parent volunteers engage in a variety of important initiatives for the school, which include Celebration Saturday, the Father Daughter Dance, Used Uniform Sales, Used Textbook Sales and Horticulture. Members also volunteer as Grade Representatives and assist with the smooth running of the school's Green & Gold Shop.

Endowed in the 2008-2009 school year, the HCC Bursary provides funding for mission appropriate students who would otherwise be unable to attend Havergal. Monies from several of the activities listed above as well as from the Havergal Golf Tournament seeded this endowment. Since the establishment of this important fund, it has reached $197,000.

Annual Giving: Gifts from our Old Girls Community

For generations, Old Girls have provided financial support to Havergal, particularly through endowment giving. Thank you to the 625 Old Girls who lighted the way by contributing to Annual Giving in 2012-2013.

DONATIONS IN ACTION

Class Endowments: Old Girls and their families have established Class Endowments as a legacy to their graduating year to support an initiative of their choice at Havergal.

More than 20 graduating classes have chosen to support bursaries for students. Other classes support global outreach, community initiatives, curriculum development, environmental sustainability and initiatives such as the Dr. Catherine Steele 1928 Archives.

Why We Support Havergeral

“As staff members we give annually to the school in order to support this amazing community. Havergeral offers an excellent education—it has dedicated faculty and staff and wonderful facilities. The school also provides financial help to those who may not otherwise have the opportunity to experience this vibrant school. We give because we are grateful that we have been able to share in the lives of Havergeral’s students and the paths they take as they start exciting new careers and family lives. Giving back to Havergeral is a small way to say thank you and to recognize those special connections every day.”

DONATIONS IN ACTION

The Institute at Havergal: The Institute provides school-wide education about the key forces shaping our world and delivers programs that enable students to explore and engage in the world both locally and internationally.

In May 2013, the Student Innovation Award was conferred on Susanna Manziaris who founded her own charity, GirlsHelpingGirls (GHG), which aims to eradicate gendercide by raising the status of women through education.

MEET SOME OF OUR GRADUATES FROM THE CLASS OF 2013

Havergal students excel both in and outside the classroom. Whether working in a research lab, performing on stage, volunteering at a local community centre or competing on the playing field, Havergal students confidently strive to reach their full potential. As graduates, the Class of 2013 joins the Havergal Old Girl community of more than 8,000 alumnae around the world.

Flora Hay
University of Toronto, Physics

Flora's interest in physics was sparked by her teachers at Havergal. Originally from New Brunswick, Flora chose to attend Havergal because it allowed her to explore a wide variety of academic courses while at the same time giving her the opportunity to be involved on a number of athletic teams including basketball, volleyball and ultimate Frisbee. Flora was a Sports Prefect in her senior year and ran the intramurals program. She received The All Round Sportsmanship Cup in recognition of her many contributions to sports at Havergal and her support to players both on and off the field. Currently, Flora is pursuing her interest in physics at the University of Toronto.

Rebecca Hoffer
University of Western Ontario, Ivey Business Program

As House Captain in her graduating year, Rebecca led Agnes Hansen House to victory, earning the House Cup and the coveted House Banner. During her four years at Havergal, she was also involved in the Dance Troupe and played on several sports teams. As well, Rebecca hosted an anti-bullying awareness assembly and organized a bike donation event that raised 70 bikes for children who otherwise could not afford one. A highlight of her time at Havergal was studying Mandarin, which Rebecca continues to study as part of her studies in the Ivey Business School at the University of Western Ontario. Rebecca is a proud Class Representative of the Havergal Old Girls Association.

Alice Jeon
Harvard University, Liberal Arts

Alice participated richly in all aspects of Havergal during her four years at the school. She was a Community Prefect, led the French and Spanish Clubs, edited the school newspaper, volunteered to work with the intellectually disabled, played the flute in the Symphonic Orchestra and Band and was a member of the Alpine Ski Team. Outside school, she travelled to the Philippines and Nicaragua to contribute to building infrastructure projects. Alice earned The Lieutenant Governor's Community Volunteer Award in her graduating year for her dedication to helping others, which included spending time every weekend with an elderly woman as her companion. When not at school or volunteering, she was an intern for a University of Toronto professor. Alice is currently studying the liberal arts at Harvard.

Julia Nakanishi
University of Waterloo, Architecture

Julia attended Havergal for six years before beginning her studies in architecture at the University of Waterloo. An artist and a singer, she enjoyed being involved in the school's Senior and Chamber Choirs and was Choir Co-Head in her graduating year. She was also involved in organizing and promoting the annual student-led benefit concert Beatstock in support of Lost Lyrics, a not-for-profit organization for at-risk youth. In her graduating year, Julia was the recipient of The Class of '81 Prize for Creative Contribution. Julia spent her time outside Havergal promoting the fine arts as a member of the Youth Council at the Art Gallery of Ontario and studying Japanese.

Clare Teng
University of Cambridge, Mechanical Engineering

Clare lived in Havergal's Boarding School for two years before graduating to study mechanical engineering at the University of Cambridge. She was inspired to study engineering after a Global Experience Program excursion to Costa Rica in 2011 in which she helped a community replant a forest and paint a school—an experience that showed her the value of helping communities use local resources. Clare wrote university-level Advanced Placement (AP) exams at Havergal in Physics, Biology, Calculus and Statistics and was the recipient of two AP Math Academic Prizes for high achievement. She was actively involved in community partnerships at Havergal and—in time—hopes to continue to give back to global communities in need as a professional engineer.

Victoria Walter
University of St. Andrews, Medicine

With a love of travelling, Victoria explored the world through Havergal's Global Experience Program. She spent two months on a student exchange in Australia, participated in a global community development and leadership summit in India, travelled to Iceland to explore the tectonic plate boundary and travelled to Austria and the Czech Republic with the Senior Choir. A student at Havergal for 14 years, Victoria participated in all areas of school life—as an athlete, musician, volunteer and Junior School Prefect. In her graduating year she was the recipient of the J. Herbert Mason Medal, the school's highest honour. Currently, she is studying medicine at the University of St. Andrews in Scotland.

Grace Woroch
Middlebury College, Liberal Arts

School Captain for the 2012-2013 school year, Grace enjoyed her time as the school's student leader. With the help of supportive faculty and staff, Grace learned to manage her time between school work, choir rehearsals, leadership duties and her true passion—soccer. Playing on both the school team and on a competitive Ontario Youth Soccer League team, Grace took her soccer skills to Middlebury College, where she was recruited to play on the Division 3 Soccer Team. "One of the reasons that I chose Havergal College was because of its athletic programs and beautiful playing fields," explains this proud Old Girl who moved to Toronto from Singapore in Grade 7. Grace was the recipient of The Chair of the Board of Governors Prize for Leadership in her graduating year.
