PRESIDENT'S

MESSAGE

"To be an active, vital force of men who courageously live our values and make a positive impact on college and community."

This is the vision for Phi Gamma Delta that the Archons adopted in January of this year. Why is this vision important, and how will we realize it?

Courageously Live Our Values

In the fall of 1997 – twenty years ago – I was a Chapter President concerned with recruitment, homecoming, finances and the countless other things which presidents have to think about. That September, we learned of the passing of a pledge in one of our chapters as the result of excessive alcohol consumption and hazing. Similar events, compounded by shockingly poor decisions which delayed medical assistance, have resulted in more tragic loss of life in the fraternity system in recent months.

When a member or chapter fails to perform as expected, what is the root cause? In my experience, there are three common reasons. First, the member or group may be unaware of what they are expected to do or not do. Second, a member may be unable to perform a role as expected. Or, third, he may have chosen not to do what was expected. In the first case, if a brother was unaware, was the expectation not communicated or was the expectation not being enforced? In the second case, was the inability due to a lack of training or a lack of capability? And in the third case, where he chose not to do what was expected, was there a counter incentive or a lack of courage?

Empowering our brothers to lead with ethical, safe, and responsible behavior at the testing point is a battle we must win. Our Pledge's Bill of Rights is an area of testing point education that is beneficial not only during the first year of membership, but also again in the third. Chapter leaders are accountable for the implementation of policies, but all members should be equally empowered by removing filters between them and the messages regarding expectations. Toward this end, the Fraternity has begun the implementation of a new Learning Management System (LMS) as the technology component of our educational strategy for health, safety, and operational excellence.

Make a Positive Impact on College

Greek philosophers regarded wisdom among the four most important character traits, for it teaches prudence and fortitude. Over 85% of the student leaders on some 800 campuses are members of the Greek community. Chapters that are reliably active and positive contributors to the campus culture and Greek life add value to the university's student life efforts. Impactful collective wins, such as placing first or second in campus activities, strengthen the bonds to friends, fraternity, and college. Most importantly, superior academic achievement by fraternity members supports the mission of the college. Nearly 60% of our chapters exceed both the all-fraternity GPA and all-male GPA on their campus today; we will endeavor to substantially increase that percentage.

Make a Positive Impact on Community

Of the theological virtues – faith, hope and love – love in the form of charity is held as the greatest. It is through charity that we add value to our communities. Fraternity undergraduates annually serve for 3.8 million hours in their local communities (10 hrs/member) and raise $20.3 million for philanthropic causes ($53/member). In comparison, Phi Gamma Delta's leading chapters achieve 24 hours of service and $66 per brother for charities. If we establish a singular philanthropy event for all chapters to engage in, one that becomes the first thing people think about when they think of FIJI, we might exceed $1 million and 300,000 hours for charity annually.

An Active, Vital Force

Charity, scholarship and a best in class record versus testing points are a compelling value proposition. Success in building courageous leaders creates an opportunity for breakthrough growth. There are 380,487 undergraduate men in 6,186 fraternity chapters on more than 800 campuses in the U.S. and Canada. Phi Gamma Delta is on only 20% of those campuses. By understanding the evolving selection criteria and expectations of universities and prospective members, we can better target our message. By identifying the met and unmet expectations of members at different points in their chapter years, we can react to gaps in the member experience versus expectations.

We will also utilize digital tools to generate interest and measure the effectiveness of our messaging to key audiences. Our graduate volunteer and staff structure will be more scalable to chapter and fraternity size, respectively. Growth will be achieved by improved retention of chapters, a return of dormant chapters, and expansion to emerging campuses meeting key culture and growth criteria.

Our persistent efforts to instill our values and make a positive impact on college and community will favorably influence the fraternity narrative of tomorrow.

Fraternally,

Bun Perge!

Quinnipiac

During the spring 2017 semester, Eta Chi held Not Just for 1, a philanthropy event for cancer. The concept of the event was that all types of cancer should be treated the same as the next, since there are many affected by cancer on a yearly basis. The Chapter tasked each Greek organization on campus to work together to find a member affected by cancer that they would like to represent and raise money for. In less than a month, they raised nearly $14,000 for multiple cancer foundations. Because the event was so successful, the Chapter decided to make it their annual spring philanthropy.

170 x 170: Expanding the Influence

In 2006, the Archons launched a long-term growth initiative to expand the influence of Phi Gamma Delta. At the time, there were 107 chapters and an average chapter size of 54 men, with the goal to reach 170 campuses and increase the average chapter size to 60 men by our 170th anniversary in 2018. Within five years we reached our goal to increase the average chapter size, and we are on track to achieve our goal of 170 chapters and colonies by our 170th anniversary.

Fall 2017 Expansion Results

Moving toward the 170x170 goal, the Fraternity scheduled four expansion projects for fall 2017. There are three recolonizations, at the University of Arizona, University of Texas San Antonio and Utah State University, and one new Delta Colony at the University of Tampa. As of press time, we completed the recolonization at Arizona, while the expansion projects at Tampa, Texas San Antonio and Utah State are still under way.

Not For College Days Alone? By Jonatha MD (Go

By Jonathan A. Jarman, MD (Georgia 1979)

It's More Than a Slogan

he Cloverhurst Benevolent Foundation was born from the early stages of social media. Hard to believe that a Harvard dropout's creation would greatly impact the lives of University of Georgia Fiji grads - but it would.

After graduating from the University of Georgia in 1979, I left Athens for medical school, residency, marriage, and a family. After a stint in New Orleans, I returned to settle permanently in Atlanta. For about 30 years, I had little contact with any fraternity brothers. Then Facebook was born. Reluctantly, and not really understanding why, I created a page. I am glad I did.

Amazingly, people whom I had not thought of since my 20s began to "friend" me. From this, Fiji grads began to push me to attend Pig Dinner - my last having been as a senior undergrad. Semi-reluctantly, I agreed to go. Riding with me was a brother who had been a year or two behind me in the Chapter. We were not close, but I remembered him fondly as a tall kid with a dry wit and a schlock of thick blonde hair. He told me he no longer had a driver's license and needed a ride. He said he would explain on our trip to Pig Dinner.

When I pulled up to his house, the tall kid with thick blonde hair had been replaced by a bald, overweight, middle-aged man. He had warned me I might not recognize him. I didn't.

On our 1 1/2-hour ride to Athens, he told a story I never expected to hear from a Georgia Fiji. He had been homeless, only recently putting his life back together and getting a place to live. I assumed he meant "homeless" in the sense of losing his house in a divorce or from fire or storm, but that was not the case. He meant "homeless" in the literal sense. I was stunned at this information and also at his candor. After college, he got his MBA, was doing well in business, married with children, but started drinking heavily at business outings. The heavy social drinking lead to alcoholism. He eventually lost his job and his marriage, only to find himself on the street. It was hard to grasp that he did not have family or friends to fall back on for help, but he didn't. And yet here we were, on our way to a graduate dinner with a fraternity that always stressed "not for college days alone." Certainly, I thought, if he had reached out to his fraternity brothers for help, someone would have been able to assist.

But the reality was there was no formal support system for graduate brothers with severe problems and no other support.

Later that evening, at my first Pig Dinner as a graduate brother, I learned of about a dozen brothers who had died young from suicide, alcoholism or drug abuse. This was alarming, given that, by any objective standard, we were a superior chapter. During my four years, we won the Cheney Cup twice, maintained the highest GPA among fraternities, were twice named fraternity of the year, Cloverhurst Benevolent Foundation, Inc.

Board Members: 1 Jonathan Jarman (Georgia 1979), 2 James Langford (Georgia 1973), 3 Steve Newton (Georgia 1979), 4 Sam Richwine (Georgia 1973), 5 Bill Seanor (Georgia 1979), 6 Clay Stoddard (Georgia 1970) & Mike Ostergard (Georgia 1989) (not pictured).

won the fraternity athletic trophy twice, and more accolades. This was a group of smart, talented, hard working young men, who still produced graduates who developed life-ending problems.

A group of us discussed these events and decided to create an organization that could help graduate brothers with addiction, alcoholism, depression or financial problems who had fallen through the cracks and had no support system.

For various reasons, the initial plans fell to the way side, and we never formed the organization.

A few years later, several of us learned of a Fiji contemporary who was an alcoholic, had other addiction, was in financial trouble, and had lost his marriage. Shades of the initial story. This time, however, four brothers decided he would not fall by the way side and end up on the street or dead. We had an "intervention" and got this brother into rehab.

With that experience as motivation, we finally formed the Cloverhurst Benevolent Foundation.

We are now about six months post formation, with a 501(c)3 charitable status and website www.cloverhurst.org. Our financial goal is to endow the Foundation with $100,000.00. We are well on our way. The Foundation provides support to Georgia Fiji graduates with alcoholism, addiction, financial and other problems who have no means of support.

We provide support other than just financial. In the recent case, post rehab the Foundation board met weekly with the brother for eight weeks to help get him back on his feet. In addition to his alcoholism, he had other addictive and financial problems. Immediately we found him a job. We reviewed his financial situation in detail and helped set up a plan to correct these problems. We provided financial aid. We helped him understand how these problems occurred. We hired and paid for an attorney to assist with his legal problems.

Six months after rehab, our brother is sober, has lost 60 pounds, has corrected some medical problems caused by his addiction, and has regular work with a tremendous upside.

We learned a lot from this first "intake" and are spreading the word so that other graduate brothers in need will reach out to us for assistance.

We would love to see this model adopted by graduates of other chapters and would be happy to assist any interested brothers. Foremost, we want to spread the word to UGA Fijis that this foundation exists as a support system for those with financial, alcoholism, addiction, depression or other problems.

"Not for college days alone" should not just be for social and business purposes. It should also mean that your fraternity is there when you have no other source of support.

SPOTLIGHT ON GRADUATE BROTHERS

Cohen

Wanda & Ron Crockett

Flanigan

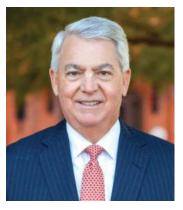

Peter Cohen (Oklahoma State 2016) recently returned from a trip to Ghana with AgriCorps (AC). AC, which was founded by Trent McKnight (Oklahoma State 2002), is a Peace Corps-type organization that sends young agriculture professionals to developing countries to be agriculture teachers. Their mission is to promote agriculture as a business and a science to the young people of Ghana, by teaching agriculture science classes in schools, establishing a 4H leadership based club, and promoting entrepreneurial projects among the youth. Peter departed for Ghana on August 12, 2016, after training for 10 days at the Nobel Research Foundation in Ardmore, OK. While in Ghana, Peter worked as a liaison for the Northern Region of Ghana to help bridge the gap between other AC fellows and 4H Ghana, their partner organization. He also worked with two different 4H clubs to facilitate growth, and he helped create partnerships between AC and other NGOs and local agribusinesses. Toward the end of his trip, he spent most of his time starting the Leadership, Education, Agriculture and Development Contests for the Northern Region of Ghana. After nearly 11 months, Peter returned to the states in June 2017.

Ron Crockett (Washington 1961) and his wife, Wanda, were recently selected to receive the 2017 Gates Volunteer Service Award, the most prestigious award given to volunteers and philanthropists by the University of Washington (UW). This award is presented annually by the UW and the UW Foundation to recognize individuals whose long-term volunteer efforts of time, service and philanthropy have encouraged others to similarly support the UW. The Crockett's were chosen for this award because they have given their time, energy and financial resources to a variety of departments at UW for decades. They are best-known for their support of the athletic department; however, they have primarily given to academics, including the School of Engineering and multiple full scholarship endowments. Ron has also shown tremendous support for the Sigma Tau Chapter at Washington. He served as Purple Legionnaire from 1980-1993, receiving the Durrance Award twice, and he served as House Corporation President from 2006-2015. He also received the Fraternity's Distinguished Fiji Award in 1992.

James B. "Bren" Flanigan (Washington & Lee 2016) started working for the Department of Public Information at the United Nations in New York City, immediately following his graduation. Bren worked in this position for several months before being selected as an Economic Development Advisor volunteer for the Peace Corps (PC). As a PC volunteer, Bren moved to a small village in Benin, Africa, where he lived with a large, 25-person host family for three months to absorb the Beninese culture. After the temporary stay, Bren moved to Natitingou, the largest city in Benin, to start his permanent, two-year assignment. Currently, Bren works with three organizations in Natitingou: 1. An international, non-governmental organization that promotes the use of fonio (the Western African cereal grain). Bren assists the organization's five staff members, who work with 200 fonio producers. 2. A business that markets fonio through social media and apps. Bren advises the business on accounting practices. 3. An orphanage that houses around 30 teens, ages 18-19. Bren plans to work with the orphanage to start an English club and teach the teens how to start a business.

Judge W. Brent Powell (William Jewell 1992)

was appointed to the Supreme Court of Missouri by Governor Eric Greitens. Brother Powell graduated from William Jewell in 1992 with a degree in political science and received his law degree from the University of Missouri School of Law. He started his career as an Assistant Prosecuting Attorney for the Platte County Prosecutor's Office, before serving as a federal prosecutor for the U.S. Attorney's Office in the Western District of Missouri. As a federal prosecutor, he was the Executive Assistant United States Attorney, the Chief of the General Crimes Unit, and he tried over 40 trials. He served for seven years in this position before being appointed to the Jackson County Circuit Court by Missouri's Governor Blunt in 2008. Brother Powell remained on the Circuit Court until his appointment to the Supreme Court of Missouri in April 2017. Additionally, he is a regular instructor for the Ross T. Dr. Robert Tigner (Hanover 1990) received the Advisor Award of Distinction from the North-American Interfraternity Conference (NIC) for over two decades of service as Chapter Counselor to the Zeta Xi Chapter of Beta Theta Pi at Truman State University (TSU). Brother Tigner, who is a psychology professor at TSU, began advising the Beta chapter 26 years ago, when the chapter was only one year old. Beta Theta Pi awarded Robert with the Dr. Edward B. Taylor Advisor of the Year Award in 2005 and the regional Outstanding Friend of Beta Award in 2006. TSU recognized him as the E.M. Violette Outstanding Advisor of the Year in 2009 and 2010.

Todd Weaver (Tennessee Tech 2002) was recently named Officer of the Year by the Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency (TWRA). Todd was nominated for the award by a sergeant in his district and was chosen as the winner because of his accomplishments, public outreach, innovation, excellence, teamwork, leadership and passion for his work as a wildlife officer in Sullivan County, TN. Todd always loved the outdoors, so he decided to pursue a degree in wildlife and fishery science at Tennessee Tech. After graduation, he worked several short-term jobs before starting his career at TWRA in 2007. Todd worked as both a fisheries and wildlife technician before being promoted to officer. Additionally, Todd was named Tennessee Wildlife Officer of the Year in 2012 by the international organization Shikar-Safari Club. ◆ his summer, the Fraternity held two sessions of The Leadership Institute at Georgetown College in Georgetown, KY. This five-day experience is designed to encourage brothers to dig deep into the concepts of courageous leadership, recognize testing points, align actions with personal and Fraternity values, create a realistic action plan, and work through ambiguity and tough situations.

The 2017 Institute was double the size of last year! Over the two sessions there were 140 undergraduates representing 100 chapters and colonies, 22 graduate brothers, and 16 campus-based professionals (non-members). Undergraduate brothers were broken up into small groups with 10 undergraduate brothers, one graduate brother, and one campus-based professional to navigate through the curriculum. All participants went through the same experience.

The curriculum is based on the three elements of courageous leadership: understanding and committing to our values, recognizing the testing points – times when our values are challenged – and applying our values at the testing point and confronting issues.

"The most valuable thing I learned was learning to be a Courageous Leader in the first place... (the Institute) teaches you how to be comfortable in uncomfortable situations. When you're facing ramifications and you know you're about to make an unpopular decision, you can fight through that adversity, overcome the fear and just move forward as a chapter."

- Austin Cook (Old Dominion 2017)

"I definitely recommend The Leadership Institute to other brothers. It had a huge impact on the way I see leadership now. A lot of brothers want to just jump in and be leaders, but they definitely put a lot of emphasis on being good followers as well. I think that in itself can really help a lot of chapters."

- Brendan Boyle (Minnesota 2020)

The Leadership Institute was fully funded through the generosity of nine graduate brothers and the Phi Gamma Delta Educational Foundation. See the Educational Foundation article on page 48 for more on their work to support Building Courageous Leaders.

FOCUS

Building Courageous Leaders

"Courage is not simply one of the virtues, but the form of every virtue at the testing point." - C. S. Lewis

Dear Brothers,

The purpose of The Leadership Institute is to create Courageous Leaders: First, by helping undergraduate brothers to understand and commit to our Values; second, by helping them recognize "testing points" – the times when our Values are challenged; and third, to equip them to apply our Values at the testing point and confront the real issue.

Courage is "the ability to do something that frightens us." Change is happening rapidly. Frequently, brothers can be confused and challenged by the changes that chapter life, campus culture and their friends can bring. Brothers need something they can grasp firmly and that does not change–our Values. The Institute helps develop courage by articulating how to find the root causes of problems and develop an appropriate response with help from others.

Over the years, we have witnessed that as our chapters and colonies lead with Values, their level of success increases. These are intricate life lessons to understand on an individual basis and to teach at an organizational level. The Institute helps take confusion out of decision making and teaches Brothers how to use Values as a tool for the Fraternity and themselves. We want to equip Brothers to have courageous conversations that count in the Fraternity, the classroom and life.

Over the last two summers, 230 brothers have benefitted from discussions about "Exploring My Values," "Values in Action" and "Values Gaps," which naturally lead into how to "Identify the Real Issue" and "How Do We Create Change." Watching the "Aha" moments take place as brothers "get it" makes the work all the more meaningful. Please see the Institute article on page 46.

We would like to thank the nine graduate brothers who made the 2017 Institute possible with their generous donations toward the $170,000 expense.

As we move forward, the financial support of many more graduate brothers for The Leadership Institute through the Phi Gamma Delta Educational Foundation will help us Build more Courageous Fijis. If you are interested in speaking about it, please let us know.

When you're in your early twenties, "Not For College Days Alone" sounds like a reminder that someday you will have a real job and the ability to pay graduate dues. Naturally it's more than that, especially if, like me, you owe your undergraduate—and in my case also graduate—success to support from the Phi Gamma Delta Educational Foundation. As much as I enjoyed doing farm labor and tech support to pay for college, the Foundation was a well-placed opportunity to keep me focused on my studies, and to afford what otherwise would have been hard to justify: fraternity membership.

Fast forward about 20 years. Social media has allowed me to keep up with most of my class from the Upsilon Kappa Chapter, superficially at least. But, otherwise I've been out of the loop. I had been busy and been to a few places—Bolivia, Colombia, Peru, most of Central America and the Caribbean, Kyrgyzstan, Uzbekistan and Afghanistan (twice). Over the course of my postgraduate studies, I've spent about four years in the foreign aid community, and 11 years in the defense community, of which nine have been Federal service. Then, one day, I happened to be in Kentucky for a family wedding, on leave from civilian duties in Afghanistan. At the last minute, two of my old Kentucky brothers found time to get together and catch up. It was as if no time had gone by at all. And that's the moral of the story: Not For College Days Alone.

Matthew M. Felice (Kentucky 1997) was an undergraduate Foundation Scholarship recipient and twice winner of a Foundation Graduate Fellowship. Matt graduated from the University of Kentucky Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce.

These scholarships and fellowships are funded in part by estate gifts by graduate brothers received over the years. •

To leave a tax-deductible gift to the Educational Foundation consider the following:

"I leave and bequeath unto the Phi Gamma Delta Educational Foundation, Inc. the sum of $_____, or ____% of estate (or specific securities or other property). Said Foundation is a nonprofit 501(c)(3) corporation (Federal ID Number 52-6036185), organized under the laws of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, with administrative offices at 1201 Red Mile Rd, P.O. Box 4599, Lexington, Kentucky 40544-4599. This gift is unrestricted for general Foundation purposes."

For estate gift questions and restrictions, please contact Executive Director Ben Robinson, at brobinson@phigam.org or 859-255-1848 ext. 133.

Robert W. Taylor (SMU 1952)

passed ad astra on April 13, 2017. As a research director at federal agencies and private research centers, Brother Taylor had a direct effect on the invention of the computer mouse, the personal computer, and the Internet. While a research manager at NASA in the early 1960s, he provided funding to a researcher who invented the computer mouse. A few years later, at the Advanced Research Projects Agency (ARPA) in the Defense Department, researchers under his guidance developed ARPAnet, a forerunner of the modern Internet. At the Palo Alto Research Center in the 1970s, researchers in his lab built the Alto, one of the first personal computers, along with file-sharing systems and an early word-processing system. Bob served in the U.S. Navy in the Korean War. In 1999 he was awarded the National Medal of Technology by President Bill Clinton.

FRATERNALLY SPEAKING

The evolution of the chapter house in Phi Gamma Delta began about 150 years ago when many chapters first rented a "hall" exclusively for chapter functions. By 1880 most every chapter had such an arrangement. Later in the 1880s chapters began to lease houses, and in 1889 the Gamma Phi Chapter at Penn State broke ground on Phi Gamma Delta's first house construction project. The pace of house purchase or construction picked up in the early decades of the 20th century. In recent years, the chapters at Penn State, Penn and Bucknell have celebrated the 100th anniversaries of the houses that they still occupy.

One of the ancillary but significant benefits of the early chapter house projects was the increased involvement of graduate brothers as they engaged in the very practical activity of financing, building and managing properties.

The acquisition or construction of chapter houses continued through the 20th century, and indeed continues today. In the past six years, seven house corporations have completed multi-million-dollar projects to build new houses, and three have completed major renovations. Six other house corporations are in various stages of fund raising, planning, and construction of new buildings or major renovations.

As more chapters acquired housing, there came a time when a chapter without a house or lodge, whether rented or owned, was a rarity, and it was widely assumed that a chapter could not exist without such a facility. In more recent decades, however, the number of fraternity chapters operating without a house has increased. Many institutions that host fraternities today are located in settings where fraternity houses are unfeasible due to some combination of high property values, lack of suitable properties, and zoning restrictions. Responding to increasing student interest in fraternity life, these institutions, many in urban settings, have invited more fraternities to their campus.

This trend notwithstanding, traditional houses continue to play an important role in fraternity life, although in recent years activities at all times of the day and evening, at many chapters it is no longer practical for a majority of the brothers to sit down together for lunch or dinner. Because of the expense and other challenges of employing a cook and maintaining a commercial grade kitchen, more chapters today contract with companies to cater their meals.

As any parent of a college students knows, there are many more housing options today. Some offer high-end amenities and features, with a price tag to match. "Dormitory" (from the Latin for sleeping place) is an obsolete term on today's campuses, as many institutions have vastly upgraded their housing to suite and apartment style living. Some schools require first-year students, and in some cases sophomores as well, to live in campus housing. Private developers too have built new options for students. Many students, having had a bedroom to themselves at home, want a more private housing arrangement than previous generations.

The net effect of these and other developments is that, across Phi Gamma Delta and the fraternity system, a smaller percentage of chapter members live in the chapter house. As rooms that once were doubles have become singles, house capacities have been revised downward. Chapters and house corporations have had to revise their financial models, an adjustment made somewhat easier thanks to the pricing of the higher-end competition from the institutions and private landlords.

Even as the role and management of the chapter house continues to evolve, we should be encouraged by two observations: graduate brothers who regard the house as integral to fraternity life continue to contribute their time and resources to support that experience, and there is plenty of evidence that the fraternity idea is durable enough to thrive without a house.
